Step into a long-established operation with customer relationships built on technical expertise, reliability and trust.

Acquire the team and capability together

Experienced management, skilled employees and established systems provide a foundation for continuity under new ownership.

Put substantial infrastructure to work from day one

Specialist equipment and premium workshop facilities support an operation that would take considerable time and capital to recreate.

Serve clients who depend on keeping equipment moving

A diverse commercial and industrial customer base generates ongoing servicing and maintenance work.

Explore growth from an established base

Opportunities include increasing workshop utilisation, expanding mobile and field services, developing recurring service contracts and reaching complementary industries.

Consider owning the premises too

The optional freehold gives buyers the opportunity to explore ownership of both the operating business and its premises.

Benefit from a structured handover

Seller support is available to help transfer operational knowledge and customer relationships.

YOUR NEXT BUSINESS OR YOUR NEXT STRATEGIC ADVANTAGE?

For an existing mechanical or engineering operator, this could provide an established regional presence, additional capability and access to long-standing customer relationships.

For an experienced industry professional, management team or investor, it offers the opportunity to acquire a substantial operation with proven earnings and room to develop.

The cost of overlooking this opportunity? Someone else could acquire the team, relationships and infrastructure you would otherwise spend years building.

If this fits your acquisition plans, request the Information Memorandum and explore the numbers, operations and opportunity in detail.
